LITERATURE.

WIDE AWAKE.

The December Wide Awake is the holiday issue, and is probably the largest and finest single number of a young folks' magazine ever published: it appears in a beautiful cover printed in colors, and its page of contents gives a tempting array of titles, and an impressive list of authors. Two frontispieces open the number: "Lost on the way to Grandpa's," by George F. Barnes, and "The Mother and the Child," from Bourgeois's painting, with a border designed by E. H. Garrett, and illustrating Mrs. A. D. T.
Whitney's poem with the same title. Mrs. Whitney's poem is followed by one from Elizabeth Stuart Phelps, "The Little Mud Sparrows," Celia Thaxter and Helen Hunt are also represented by poems with very beautiful illustrations. Farther on is an illustrated group of poems contributed by English poets. There is also a Russian Folk-Lore Ballad, by Mrs. Craigin, with seventeen illustrations by Miss McDermott.
Two serials are begun: "The Silver City," by F. R. A. Ober, and "Old Caravan Days," by Mrs. Catherwood. Mrs. Diaz also begins an amusing series, "The John Spicer Lectures." The number is crammed like a pudding with plums, with sparkling short stories from the best story writers in America. One hundred and fifty original engravings illuminate the number, which will be long remembered and long preserved.

Lake: James Dwyer.

FRANCIS PRIZE CHRISTMAS CARDS

The success of the two first prize exhibitions of Christmas card designs, induced Mr. Prang to make an offer, last autumn, of another series of prizes. This time, however, he doubled the total amount offered, dividing the sum equally between two series of prizes, each series consisting of four prizes of $1,000, $500, $300 and $200 respectively.
One series of prizes was awarded by a jury of all the well-known artists of New York, Boston and Philadelphia, and the other by the votes of the general public visiting the exhibition. The cards are now out and on sale at Mr. Dwyer's. They are the handsomest that have ever been produced, and range in price from $1.25 to 50 cents each.

GOLDEN FLORAL.

"The Breaking Waves Dashed High," is one of the Golden Floral series issued by Lee & Shepard, Boston, and sold in this city by James Dwyer, at the publisher's price, $1.75. It is one of the most beautiful of the many late art publications, and a more appropriate gift to a distant friend could hardly be selected. The poem is charmingly illustrated by Miss L. B.
Humphrey, and the printer and engraver have done their best to add charms.

SIX INTERVIEWS WITH ROBERT G. IN-GERSOLL, on Six Sermons by the Rev.
Dr. De Witt Talmage, D. D., to which is added a Talmagian Catechism, Syngraphically reported by I. Newton Baker. Price, $2. Washington: C. P.
Farrell.

This work, just published, is a series of interviews with the distinguished atheist on six sermons delivered against him by the Rev. De Witt Talmage, to which is added also a Talmagian catechism. It is an elegant volume of 443 pages, printed on good paper, and in large type.

To understand thoroughly the full force of the arguments used by Mr.
Ingersoll, it is necessary for us to read carefully the sermons of Talmage, but as these are not at hand, we can only judge of their merits, as they are presented to us through the medium of his opponent, and consequently we may do the reverend gentleman, unintentionally, an injustice.

Mr. Talmage is essentially a sensational preacher, and in that line has acquired his present fame, but as soon as he comes into the field as a debater and thinker he plainly shows that he is entirely out of his element, and that he is altogether too light a weight for his wily opponent, who has had so much experience and has displayed so much ability and skill, especially as a debater.

Mr. Ingersoll in this work has not at all fallen behind any of his previous efforts, so far as brilliance of diction, a keen sense of the absurdities and ludicrous assertions of his opponent are concerned, and also the masterly skill which he displays in turning them to his own advantage. He is no doubt a good lawyer, but the duties of his profession have not been a very good school for comprehending a work like the Bible, nor preparing him to understand the philosophy of history. Such a man looks upon everything that he reads, especially if he has a case to make against what he is reading, with a very critical eye, and will thus find a great many inaccuracies and inconsistencies that are entirely wanting to the biased judgement of a neutral reader. The Bible, especially the Old Testament, written in very early times when language was in a very primitive state, and almost every expression was figurative, to say no thing of the inaccuracies and interpretations that have crept in from time to time, cannot be taken literally by the intelligent reader; and we believe that there are very few Christians at the present time who believe that it ought to be understood literally.

Before Mr. Talmage enters into any scientific explanations, it would be well for him to make himself better acquainted with the sciences than he appears to be in the present discussion, and to advance no theories of his own until he has subjected them to a thorough test, or if he is not able to do this, to submit them to those who can. Christianity, we hope, is not so desperately in need of help as to require us to believe that all the great modern inventions, such as the railroad, steamboat, telegraph, telephone, etc., were thoroughly understood by Jews in ancient times, nor that in the account of the creation of Eve the word "rib," means, in the original Hebrew, "side," as if this would help the matter any; nor that Jonah was constantly on the "jump and go," in the whale's belly, to prevent dissolution by means of gastric juice; nor that he might have spent his time in the whale's mouth; nor that vegetation was supported before the sun and moon were created, by the light of volcanoes in the moon, and the radiation from huge mountains of northern granite, and rocks in process of crystallization, nor in many more explanations equally absurd.

On the other hand, it seems to us a great waste of time to insist that Christians do believe what they do not believe. For instance, Mr. Ingersoll still declares that the Bible reader must believe that God created the world out of nothing, though he is willing that Mr. Talmage should substitute "omni-potence" instead of nothing, if he chooses; that the world was created in six days and nights of twenty-four hours each, that there can be no inconsistencies; that the Bible is a scientific book; and many other propositions equally as unreasonable. That he is not well acquainted with history is very readily seen from the fact that he attributes to Christianity almost all wickedness that has been perpetrated in Christian nations, when a little thought and study must plainly show to him that this very wickedness comes from human nature, and must have happened, and very likely much worse, under any system of religion. All that a religion can do is to help reform a people, and if that religion is too elevated for his comprehension, he immediately adopts it to his condition, and we have no better example of this than Christianity itself, which became so thoroughly paganized in the Middle Ages that it might be brought in consonance with the sentiments of the people that professed it.

In the last sermon Mr. Talmage shows the full scope of his reasoning powers when he attempts to prove the inspiration of the Bible by saying that there are more copies of that book in existence than any other; that no infidel has ever been delected to office; that Ingersoll was defeated as candidate for governor of Illinois; that if we abandon the Bible we would have nothing to swear witnesses by, nor would there be any book for the centre-table, and no book that a mother could give her son when he leaves the old homestead. We thus see what an easy task his opponent has to perform.

On the whole, we see nothing new in the book, except the allusions made to the surprising theories and explanations of Mr. Talmage; the rest of the book is but a rehash of what we have, no doubt, all heard before and what, under any circumstances, will be of little profit to the intelligent reader, though it may afford him some amusement.

FRECKLES. By Rebecca Burgess. New York: John W. Lowell Company.
Price, 20 cents.

This uncommon title is that of one of Lovell's library, a library which has but recently been commenced. This is a charming story, and one all will enjoy reading.

Freckles was the name given to the heroine, in her youthful days, by her mother, and why it is needless to say. All brothers are alike. The name clings to her throughout the story, and we rarely hear her called by her right name, Hilda. It is a home story of Southern life since the war, and we have the usual variety of characters. There are many pleasing and laughable incidents related, and also much of sadness, sorrow and trouble. In reading those parts relating to the terrible fever, of the suspense of friends and their final separation, our sympathy goes out to them and we are sharers of their sorrow. There is little aim at fine description, nor are there any situations unreal to actual life.

THE WONDERFUL CITY; or, Further Adventures of the Jewell Family and Their Friend, Otto Nambu. By Edward Gray. With 160 Illustrations.
Illustrated cover, $1.75. Boston: Lee & Shepard; Salt Lake: James Dwyer.

This is a most attractive book both in its matter and illustrations. It is thoroughly original, and is characterized by an individuality which experienced familiarity with one's theme always confers upon a writer's literary efforts. Mr. Gray was long a resident of Japan, and by personal contact with all classes of its people was enabled to gain information at first hand. In a manner exceedingly pleasant, he permits his readers to view things as he saw them, but to form opinions of their own. But the author never loses sight of the fact that he is writing for young people, and therefore surrounds his American heroes and heroines with scenes and customs that are out of the commonplace and are to a certain extent curious and strange. Under the guidance of their Japanese friend, Dr. Nambu, with them we dine at a Japanese restaurant, assist at a confagration, are entertained by the jugglers, are made acquainted with all sorts of trades, and, in fact, have no end of adventure.

TRUE Temperance

Is not signing a pledge or taking a solemn oath that cannot be kept, because of the non-removal of the cause —liquor. The way to make a man temperate is to kill the desire for those dreadful artificial stimulants that carry so many bright intellects to premature graves, and desolation, strife and unhappiness into so many families.

It is a fact! BROWN'S IRON BITTERS, a true non-alcoholic tonic, made in Baltimore, Md., by the Brown Chemical Company, who are old druggists and in every particular reliable, will, by removing the craving appetite of the drunkard, and by curing the nervousness, weakness, and general ill health resulting from intemperance, do more to promote temperance, in the strictest sense than any other means now known.

It is a well authenticated fact that many medicines, especially 'bitters,' are nothing but cheap whiskey vilely concocted for use in local option countries. Such is not the case with BROWN'S IRON BITTERS. It is a medicine, a cure for weakness and decay in the nervous, muscular, and digestive organs of the body, producing good, rich blood, health and strength. Try one bottle. Price $1.00.
